Max Goes to Jupiter: A Science Adventure with Max the Dog

By Jeffrey Bennett Nick Schneider, Erica Ellington Illustrated by Michael Carroll Big Kid Science, $16.95, 32 pages

This book is about Max, the first Rottweiler to go to Jupiter, well, actually some of Jupiter's moons. This book is very detailed in its information. I think it's a little too detailed. Each page contains side bars of scientific information on Jupiter. This is a good book for a child already interested in science, or it belongs in a classroom. I do not think this will spark any already absent interest in space.

One of my criteria when reviewing a book is if it makes a good bedtime story, something the parent can read with their child as they follow along. This book doesn't quite meet that criterion. The information is very thorough and well written and the paintings are detailed and colorful. Pick up this book for the little scientist in your life, or for the library shelves of your classroom.
